

Ralph Herman Anglen

January 2, 1910 - August 4, 2011

Obituary

August 4, 2011 Ralph Herman Anglen of Broken Arrow, 100, entered eternal life April 21, 2010. He was born January 2, 1910 in Weer, OK to Ira Taylor and Clara (Weer) Anglen. A retired machinist, he also worked in the bakery and as a farmer and rancher. Ralph was a former member of Thomas Community Church and the Assembly at Broken Arrow. Preceded by his wife Martha (Noble) Anglen, he is survived by his loving son Rex Anglen; granddaughter Sharon Mitchell and her husband Ken; great-grandchildren: Brandee Hurt, Ashley Mitchell and Erin Ward and her husband Cory; great-grandchildren: Taylor Hurt, Maddison, Elizabeth and Cooper Ward; and sister Eula.

Graveside service: 2PM Friday, April 23 at Park Grove Cemetery. Kennedy-Amis-Kennard Funeral Service, 251.5331.

To send flowers to the family or plant a tree in memory of Ralph Herman Anglen, please visit our floral store.

Tribute Wall

SI

“ I love the idea behind this. It's so soledm that we see anything regarding Ralph McQuarrie's concept art for the original Star Wars. These figures are a great representation of what might have been. The differences between the concepts and the finals are mind-blowing. Leia was more like Han Solo with a smuggler's outfit and blaster. The stormtroopers had lightsabers! As figures, they're also fun. They all have incredible detail. I particularly like the snowtrooper's dirty look. The only drawback is that the stormtrooper figure does not come with the shield pictured on the box. That's too bad, but frankly for the price of this set, I really don't mind it's a great deal.

Siva - February 23, 2011 at 11:00 PM

RE

“ Ralph and I met up last week, and I somehow ended up on his front room floor dnsonmtratieg The Pidgeon. It'sa0a fantastic stretch for the glutes/ITB that will particularly benefit runners and cyclists, and after a couple of weeks of using this stretch it's been a huge help. I'm still way off the desired final position (as you will see), but if you think this effort is way off the mark be thankful thata0we didn't make this clip when Ia0attempted my first one!

Rehana - February 23, 2011 at 11:00 PM